Interest Manifested by Government Officials in the Results.

ADMINISTRATION'S FATE IN OHIO

What the Democrats Expect to Accomplish.

KENTUCKY COMPLICATIONS

The interest in the elections next week manifested by government officials and all persons associated with the administration is entirely disproportionate to the seeming importance of the events, and the greatest uncertainty and anxiety are shown by men

Notwithstanding the uncasiness about Ohio indicated by the great efforts being put forth by Senator Hanna to save the state and the confessions by republicans that the contest is close, the belief is not general among democrats that there is any great probability of McLean being elected governor. The impression among them appears to be that the republicans are unnecessarily alarmed, the democrats themselves being unable to see why, with Jones in the field as an independent candidate, drawing largely, as is supposed, from the democrats, there should be any serious doubt as to the result, especially as there is some dissatisfaction among the demo-

is some dissatisfaction among the crats of Ohio with their candidate.

Reason for Some Anxiety. A reason for the anxiety within the administration circles is that much is heard through correspondence which Ohio republicans here have from home of a disposition among those who do not like Hanna to take this occasion to turn him down. It is take this occasion to turn him down. It is recognized that such a disposition does exist among republicans, and there is a natural uncertainty whether or not it will go far enough to find expression at the polls. It is on account of the extent of this anti-Hanna sentiment that both Hanna himself and the republican state committee are exerting themselves to the utmost to make the issue of the campaign one of sustaining the national administration. The President accepts the proposition that the defeat of his party in his own state at this time would be equivalent to a repudiation President accepts the proposition of the defeat of his party in his own state at this time would be equivalent to a repudiation of the administration, and therefore the fate of the President himself is thrown into the balance, so that republicans who fail to support the ticket will be put in a position to take responsibility for a slap at the administration while trying to revenge themselves on Hanna. It is recognized that the President practically ventures everything in this one cast of the die, and it is believed that by making so much depend upon the result the danger of failure is reduced to almost nothing.

Expectations of the Democrats.

Generally speaking, all the democrats have serious expectation of accomplishing at next Tuesday's elections is to hold Nebraska for Bryan and to reclaim Maryland, besides reducing the republican plurality in Ohio. There is little expectation among well-informed democrats that they will be able to elect Goebel in Kentucky, and the republicans are confident that Taylor will be elected. The character of both Goebel and Brown, the two democratic candidates, is being so bitterly attacked, while the republican candidate appears to escape personal criticism, that it seems probable that a great many good citizens of the blue that a great many good citizens of the blue grass state will say to the democrats, "A plague on both your houses," and cast their votes for the republican candidate. Democratic leaders outside the state, who have become disgusted with the situation there, confine their interest generally to the legislature, feeling a personal interest in the return of Joe Blackburn to the United States Senate. The men feeling this interest are now alarmed lest the legislature, as well as the governorship, be lost in the general methe governorship, be lost in the general me-lee. By some it is felt that Bryan has com-promised himself to some extent by having anything whatever to do with the Ken-A failure by the democrats in both Kentucky and Maryland would give the democrats very grave concern for the

The most common opinion among practical politicians is that the democrats will win in Bryan's state. The republicans are making an earnest fight to carry Nebruska, but the character of the contest in Ohio has, it is said, prevented as much attention being paid to Nebraska by the republican national organization as would otherwise have been devoted to it. The motive for making a special example of that state because of Bryan's identification with it is weakened by the belief that Bryan has got such a hold on his party organization that even defeat in his own state and democratic failure in Ohio. Kentucky and Maryland would not prevent his nomination in 1900 by the same element who nominated him in 1806. It is felt that the democrats. having made their issues so explicit, they would realize that the situation could not be changed by dropping Bryan for another candidate, and that even the eastern demo-crats would conclude that since defeat at the pells was inevitable, it would be better to let that defeat fall on Bryan, carrying with him all that he stands for.

OWENS FAMILY TROUBLES. Husband and Wife in Court and the Former Fined.

William Owens' ideas about his home being his castle were upset this morning by Judge Scott, when the latter fined him $20, with the alternative of spending ninety days in jail, on a charge of wife beating. The story of the family troubles was a twosided one, as such stories usually are. On one side, Mrs. Maggie Owens gave a sketch of her alleged ill-treatment last night at the hands of her husband. She told how the cries for help had startled some of the residents of "Fishtown," in South Justice Cole today on motion to suppress Washington, near where her home is. Her husband, she declared, threw her down and beat her, and, she said, he had no provoca-

The husband thought the provocation was great, although he did not admit the charge.

to Judge Scott, "'cause I certainly was in temper."

His complaint was that he had objected to his wife's entertaining Jennie Thompson, a guest, and neglecting to feed a boarder. The trouble occurred, he said, when he attempted to eject the guest. "I'm the man of my own house" added "I'm the man of my own house," added Owens, "and if I can't rule it I won't have

This concluded what he had to say, and he was very much surprised when he heard the sentence imposed.

Major Glassford's Suggestions for Increasing the Island's Trade-

The report of Brig. Gen. George W. Davis, commanding the department of Porto vania Railway Company's ferryboat Chi Rico, was made public by the War Department today. reigns throughout the department.

Courts have been established in which speedy trial by jury is assured, the writ of habeas corpus has been promulgated, and a number of the obsolete Spanish laws, which delayed the administration of justice, have been abrogated.

To Increase Island's Trade.

Accompanying the report is an interesting discussion upon the government of Porto Rico by Major W. A. Glassford. Among the suggestions for reform offered by Major Glassford is one that a market for sugar, coffee and tobacco is indispensable for the well being of the island.

He points out that Porto Rico's trade with Spain and Cuba has practically been cut off, and that fairness to the inhabitants cut off, and that fairness to the inhabitants makes it imperative to open for them a new field of trade. He says that a reduction of duties on Porto Rican products entering the United States and also on some American products entering Porto Rico would facilitate the development of trade relations between the two countries. He calls the attention of American merchants to the fact that in developing trade relations with Porto Rico the peculiar wants and preferences of the peculiar wants and preferences of the peculiar wants and preferences of the people must be considered, as they have been used to a class of goods different in style and type from those commonly used in the United States

Health of the People. A report from the chief surgeon deals nterestingly with the vaccination of the 786,200 inhabitants of the island at a total cost of $28,536. The chief surgeon says that the outlook for a satisfactory solution of the sanitary problems involved in mainaining permanent military posts in the island is very good, but he says that there is still considerable work to be done in this line. He recommends the institution of athletic sports and all other helpful amusements for the benefit of the soldiers, who will otherwise be led into the various forms of debauchery and dissipation which in the tropics are peculiarly cheap and plenty.

MINISTER EXPELLED.

Baptist Ministers Settle Controversy in Salem Church.

The Salem Baptist Colored Church, on Champlain avenue northwest, has been in a state of confusion for the past two months, the result of a contention over charges made against the pastor. As was stated in The Star several weeks ago, Miss C Crutchfield, a young member of the church, charged the pastor, Rev. A. A. Edgerton, with being responsible for her downfall. When the pastor learned of the allegation he became angered and went at once to where the girl was employed, and she says he struck her.

A warrant was issued for his arrest, it is said, but he left the city that night, and remained away for five months. During the time the church met and declared the pulpit vacant. The friends of the pastor here went to work to have him returned. They finally arranged matters so that he might forfelt $10 collateral for the assault, which he did. He succeeded in being reelected pastor. The people of the community began to denounce this action in such terms that the church had to take up the case again. But it was not until the Baptist ministry threatened to withdraw the hand of fellowship from the church that they succeeded in deposing the pastor from the pulpit and excluding him from the church.

The matter has been considered by the Ministers' Association for several weeks. Rev. Geo. W. Lee, D.D.; Rev. J. H. Clark and Rev. I. Toliver were appointed to fully investigate and report, and upon the strength of their report Rev. Edgerton was unanimously expelled from the Baptist conference, thus ending a long and bitter fight. It is said that the church is split all to pieces, with very little hope of being able to hold together.

The small number of passengers did not exhaust the supply of life preservers, but many in their excitement did not stop to put them on, but leaped overboard unprovided. It is feared that some such persons must have gone down in the chilly waters before help came.

The fireboat, the police boat Patrol and several launches were called to the scene and did valuable work in rescuing people. Several small boats were sent out from the neighboring piers, and in ones and twos and threes the drenched, chilled and sometimes unconscious passengers were brought into the piers, where they received needed spired in the foreign markets by the reverses to the British in the Transvaal resulted in some rather free selling of the international list during the early trading this morning. Stocks sold at widely differing prices during the confusion incident to a more or less excited opening, the local money situation being added to the depressing influences of the first hour. Money was bid up to 30 per cent early in the day, and a further shifting of loans was in progress, to the great detriment of stock improvement. Complex as the money situation undoubtedly is, there is a most pronounced confidence in the future of the market, especially among the more influential interests.

There can be no doubt that the interests possessing the capacity for making and directing important financial movements are anxious to have prices advance. In a passive way this fact has been in evidence for weeks, but it was only last week that an open acknowledgment of such a desire was made. Today the City Bank openly loaned money in the street for the first time recently, and the action was immediately construed to be another declaration of the position of the strongest interests behind the market.

The attitude of this bank last spring, it will be remembered, was a most potent influence in the market, since its collateral loans and its estimate of loan values were items of almost supreme speculative influence. In addition to this unusual feature was the reversal of positions on the part of the market for money and that for part of the market for money and that for part of the market for money and that for securities.

As the recovery proceeded the money rate recoded, so that, after a 2 per cent rally in some of the Steel stocks, money was offered and loaned at 6 per cent. It it more than probable that the short interest did most, if not all, the more important buying simply because money should work easier after the first of the month and because of a probable ante-election and because of a probable ante-election

All of the low-priced shares held well after the opening weakness, and many of them gained a full point during the afternoon rally. The strength of government bonds was taken as an indication that banks were contemplating an increase in circulation.

The South Affican difficulty will be reflected during a part of each day in the local market, but there is a fair prospect of increasing breadth in the market for the better managed issues. better managed issues.
